Meetings were held with various travel agencies in New York and other cities to see if the information they were presently receiving about tourism in Italy was satisfactory.

Discussions were held various magazine editors, with a view of interesting; them in having articles assigned to their writers on the tourist attractions of Italy. Newspapers and magazines were furnished with articles and photographs relating to forthcoming tourist events in Itlay. News stories were sent out concerning events of interest to travel editors.

A questionnaire survey was prepared by Registrant and distributed to travel and women's page editors in many cities in the United States. These surveys asked what, if any, material the editors were presently receiving concerning Italian tourism were the editors pleased with the material they were now receiving, or did they have suggestions for improvement, and did they wish additional articles or photographs on tourism prepared for them.
